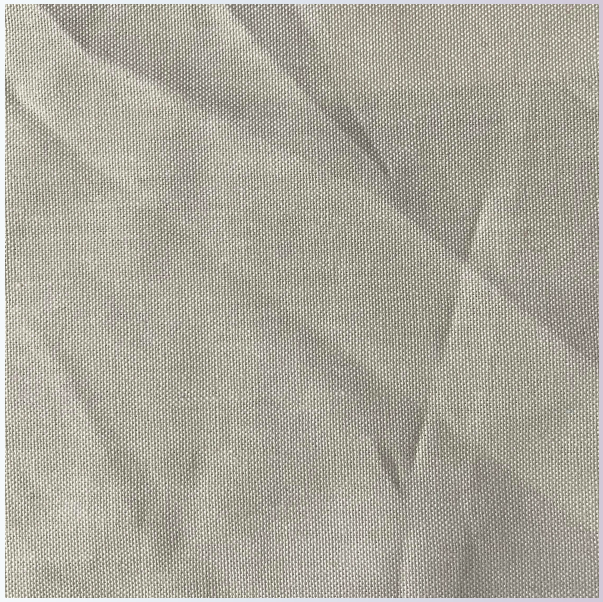
Print Option

The print selected for this line is a screen printed cotton shirting from Mood Fabrics. This was screen printed with a rotary screenprinting machine with 6 color drums, making it a more complex scrreen print. Screenprinted fabrics can have a range of durability depending on if you are using a dye or a pigment set wth resins. For this collection, I selected a dye-based screenprint to ensure the longevity of the garment, as it is a Women's sportswear seperates line that requires the need to be used over and over again for daily office wear.

Finish Option



While many of the textiles in this collection will go through different finishing options, I wanted to highlight the calandered osford cotton matterial selected for the cropped peter pan collared blouse. Calandering a textile addes to the sheen of the textile, and makes it thinner. The textile is fed through a series of hot calendering rollers that polish, flatten, and smooth the surface of the textile. This finish is also seen in the charmeuse on the above-knee length skirt that has the pleated textile insert in the center front and back.
